REPORT OF PRINCIPAL AND SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT COUNCIL

A. J. Whittenberg Elementary is the first elementary school in South Carolina with a school-wide engineering curriculum. The school currently serves students in K4 through third grade. In 2012-2013, fourth grader will be added and the following year, 2013-2014 fifth graders will join us. Currently, AJW is the most technologically advanced elementary school in Greenville County. The innovation is apparent in many ways - from its downtown location on the Reedy River, to the partnership with the Salvation Army's Kroc Center, to the learning emphasis as an engineering school. The goals of the School Improvement Council include: to actively engage community and stakeholders in the school; monitor current school dress uniform policy; develop practices, processes, and technologies for open and effective communication; and develop a New Parent Orientation Program for new students and their parents. The goals were reviewed monthly by the SIC. School achievements included: meeting AYP (Adequate Yearly Progress) for the 2011-2012 school year and establishing strong school partnerships with such companies as Michelin, IBM, Fluor, Spinx, NEXT, CU-ICAR, GE Energy, Earth Design, Greenville Drive, Earth Fare, The First Tee, Young's Office Supply, Kroc Center, Junior League, Jacobs Engineering, Junior Achievement, Greenville Zoo, Duke Energy, Peace Center, City of Greenville, Kiwanis Club, Bon Secours St. Francis Hospital System, National Council of Examiners for Engineering and Surveying, South Carolina Business Coalition on Health, Hartness International, and many other AJW friends. AJW became the second public school in Greenville County to successfully implement a school uniform policy. The SIC completed a survey of the communication procedures and set goals for the 2012-2013 school year and organized a New Parent Orientation and Welcome Wagon. Additional accomplishments are noted in the SIC Report to the Community and Parents for 2011-2012 which was sent to all parents. A. J. Whittenberg is living up to the vision of the man for which the school was named - to provide a quality education for all children.
